

FAT BOY BRAT
CHAPTER THREE
DRUKKA THE HELLSPAWN

SLIM BOY BRAT
CHAPTER TWO
SOME SPIES ARE FROM HELL

WANDERING DRAGON BRAT
AND HIS INSANE MINIONS
CHAPTER ONE
SPREAD OF THE WORD

"System is all about catching the interest. Interest of a flower, interest of a beauty, interest of the sun, of the heavens, of the angels, and demons. It is parallel to catching the interest of money. Whoever masters it, masters all the others. Waters are controlled by it.

But when you start to catch your own interest.. Then you start to become a God."

A New Brat was walking on earth. He first became a theater actor, then caught the interest of the major spying organisation in the world, then became a teacher inside them, then he became their best teacher, and now he was lecturing their "spark-catchers", which is a class he created himself. Some people, have some powerful sparks inside their beings, and these sparks were catching the interest of the whole material realm, and Brat's new spy recruiters were the ones who catch them.

You can call it a chain organisation, some can call them a vampyric hierarchy, and I can call it a deep level ocean diving, to find, educate and rescue the lost pearls. They did their job very good. Then Brat left the job and became an open missionary of human values. He became a Hollywood actor, got the women of the highest quality and lived the best life. Everything was going according to the book we wrote for this world.

One day, we found a child from Chinese soil, a true Dragon spark was inside of him. Brat started tutoring him personally. To respect his own teacher, yes, Brat took him to the African jungles first. You can recall what he did here from the second part of the story.

"Look. Any dualistic situation is a trap. I mean, literally this is a trap. Only in a dualistic situation you can entrap any interest. Like good and bad, or high and down, or light and dark, only that way we are able to get the interest of these inner attention.

Your consciousness is the manifestation of this spark in this realm. Trapped inside this body, it emerges here as the mind and energies around your body&mind complex. And this can be felt like a 'point', a point of view, a point of focus, a point anything your whole interest is caught in. For example, think that you are in a bad situation forcing you to think something unpleasant all the time.

Think about a neighbor who makes noises all the time which itches your silent and glorious mind. And you hate it. You started to think about what can you do about this. Since you know the holy secrets of magic, you can open a gate to the Qliphotic forces, yes, they are destructive and since you are very accustomed to them, you do get no harm, but you shift your 'point' from yourself to this neighbor and bind this Qliphotic channel onto their mouth. What happens? Yes they get serious destruction, sadness and harm. I know you did this yesterday night, and you have seen the great harm you caused to them.

You have got satisfied. But then, some inner discussion aroused inside of you, since this is an "act", and it can have an effect on your own initiatic development, for your own good you considered the highs and lows of it.

Buddhists can be right on that to a degree, any action causes more work to do here in this world. But it is not the whole truth. If you resist "doing" while it is trying to happen to you, you are "doing" something much more unnecessary than what you would just "do" and forget about it.

Doing and not-doing, this is also another duality which makes you entrapped inside, within your superego you have to solve this question, but think the Middle Path of Buddhism, what they say, doing is not-doing, and not-doing is doing!

Yes! Then why, people do the good things and not have any inner discussions about the possible results of their actions? Don't they create more connections here, in dualistic world? While knowing good and bad dichotomy is the trap, why someone allows himself to do good and know it doing good will cause the bad? Because they are at the first phase of their development, and this is forgetfulness, a special flavor of stupidity.

Actually, what they do is right. The 'trap' is needed for getting the education here.

They just learn to "do" for now, and doing good is the easiest way to do something, because it creates so little inner conflicts in their mechanisms. And when they started to need something destructive in return, to learn the whole sides of the duality they are entrapped in, their sparks project it into the outside. In this phase, even if they continue to do good, they will live bad things outside. Very bad things. Sooner or later, they will get dirt.

Some will be brave enough to taste the poisonous extract this kind of an experience can give them. Some others will just feel so sorry after their involuntary bad deeds.

They will feel ashamed of themselves. And finally, and hopefully, all these sparks will learn that neither good nor bad is not the whole truth. The truth is, and is not. If your sparks truth is greater than both the good and bad, then you will be able to start searching beyond it. Your truth will force your all experiences to make you consider something other than all these duality. Otherwise, you will not feel an attraction to it.

And you will be lost, and completely finished, empty, eaten by the system.

But this challenge is necessary. Duality was, and is necessary to learn.

To outcome any trap which is always a double sided thing, you have to experience both sides of it. This is the formula I am giving you."

That was from the first year of their education. I gave it here to make you learn about it too. Drukka was the name we gave to this brilliant boy and he was not talking a lot. I hope his silent behavior makes it much more easier to imagine him in your own minds too.

Drukka tried to practice this double edged knowledge in different things. When we was sleeping, he tried to be awake also, and vise versa. When he tried to win a game, he tried to lose at time same time, and interestingly, he won all the time, oh, and vise versa. When he wanted to read, also he tried to do the reverse, for whatever it might be, find yourself, because I couldn't. When people eat from the mouth he tried to eat it from the ass, and when peopleshit from the ass he tried to shit it from the mouth. Oh, and wise versa. He tried to live while he tried to die, and while he not tried each of these. In one point, he allowed, in another he rejected. And point returned to itself. Because it has got bored from the things it experienced. But if it has rejected all the time of its experience, it would not have escaped from it. But the rejection was necessary, actually he learned that, if he leads a way based on the things his point doesn't like, the pointcould reach the higher positions above the dualistic trap much more faster.

Years passed and Drukka experienced the "noisy neighbors" problem again. What he did to his new neighbors after realizing this stuff? This time he did the not-so-pleasant evil magic again, but then his interest didn't caught there anymore, he just forget this whole trap, and focused on his own job. The "point" is got bored from the noise distraction, by experiencing the whole sides of it. If he didn't dare to experience it in both ways, probably now he wouldn't be able to disregard it.

How I know all of these? Did I experience all of these stuff? Is it so personal?

Hey, man. That's a third class story you are reading on, and I am an Immortal Dragon. Whatever you hear and you see, I am here alone. I will kill you and your dreams tonight, to make you begin new life. And your bloodline, will just feed my youth.

Aha! I borrow these last words from Slayer's Bloodline. Listen it. Very nice song indeed.

THY END