How would you like to spend part of your summer down-under? That's the direction some Savannah students are headed . Members of savannah arts academy silver winds ensemble left today for Sydney, Australia. The historic trip comes via an invitation to play at the Sidney Opera House. The award-winning band members represent one of five high schools selected from the United States to perform in Australia.

"We've gone to different other parts of the world... London, China. This is just another adventure for the band, and hopefully there will be more adventures for us to come," says Christina Cueto.

"We'd like to thank all the people of Savannah that helped to make this trip possible, says Instructor Michael Hutchinson, "our Superintendent of our school board, our Principle. We're just thankful that we have the kind of people that support the arts and allow us to go to travel like we're doing."

The trip isn't all performing and no play. Ensemble members will go on a cruise to tour parts of Australia. They will return to Savannah on July 7th.
